A religion is no better than it makes a man do good to his fellow man. Man is only what he permits himself to think or do. What a man believes doesn't necessarily make him good. A man has got to do good to be good. A tree is known by its fruit. A man is known by his work. A man does what he thinks—and thinks what he does. If the mind is right a man does right. A man reaps what he sows—and sows what he reaps. Like begets like—Quarrel and you get quarreled at—Shoot and you get shot. A man can't be right with God and wrong with his fellow man. As often as you do it to each other—You do it to me. A man can't do wrong and be right. A man can't do right and do wrong. Man's duty to God is man's duty to man. A religion is no good unless it makes men do good to each other. If we are Christians—We do what Christ would do if he was us.

God is love and love makes men do good to each other. Good is God and Christ went about doing good. And man would do good to follow Christ. Without love God means nothing to man. Love never inspires men to hate and destroy each other. Mind is God, God is mind and man should have enough of it to live in peace with each other.

If a man was dead to his creeds and trespasses he would be dead to trying to substitute himself for something that he is not.

Wages paid to produce death is the sin unto death even if it's more or less than 30 pieces of silver.

There is only one law maker and that's the law maker that made the law of the Universe. Like begets like, evil begets evil, and good begets good. This is the law and man must obey it or perish.

What a man sows he reaps. What he sends out he gets back. And the measure he uses to measure his fellow man will be used to measure him.

It's great to be smart but it makes a man feel like a fool when he finds out he is not. Wisdom is acquired by experience.

Nature slaps a man's face with a painful headache when he permits himself to violate the life law.

If man's reward is to be measured by the measure he measures his fellowman, and to be judged by the judgment by which he judges his neighbor, what can he expect of his soul when he returns to the God Who gave it.

THERE is a law: If man would stop and listen he could hear and touch the very essence of the Divine Nature of the Universe. This law was created by the Prince of Peace and passed by the Supreme Court of the Universe. This is the God of the law and life of things.

Good fruit grows on good trees. Thorns grow on thorn bushes. A good man does good work, a bad man does bad work. A man can't be right and do wrong. A man can't do wrong and be right. Life is good, good is love, love is God. God is life, the mind and soul of everything. Heaven is a place where we are sure to exchange value for value received.

Heaven is a place for men who do on earth as is done in Heaven. Good men are made on earth by doing others like they like others to do them. Every sign on the Highway to Heaven reads peace between man and man.

God is peace. God is love. God is right, and man is right with God when he is right with man and wrong with God when he is wrong with man. Salvation is to right the wrong between man and man, and is no less than to do good to each other.

There is no God outside of peace and no love outside of man's duty to man.

HEAVEN was prepared for a people from a country where they don't shoot each other. Where they use gold certificates for exchange not made out of paper, but good deeds done to each other. God is the law, with God everything moves, without God nothing moves.

We take nothing to heaven but our records. All of us go to the place that we prepare ourselves to go. Where it will be done to us as we have done to our fellow man. As often as you do it to each other you do it to me.

If the mind is wrong man is wrong. If he would think of something good he would do good. It is a Universal truth that a man does what he thinks and thinks what he does.

Man talks to God by work. God talks to man by law and that law is love your neighbor as yourself.

God is life and life is law, and law tells a man what to do, and what not to do, and permits a man to live, move and have his being.

Life is a door through which we pass from one eternity to another.

Heaven is the sum total of perfection.

The law of life is the truth of things that cannot be changed.

God is breath, breath is life and life is a product of a law that permits a man to reap according to what he sows.

A religion is no better than it make man do good or evil to each other. We have got to do good to be good.

A man reaps out of life what he puts into it.

All men are cooled and warmed by the same winters and summers and under the same law man is good or evil according to his work.

Life is spiritual but the kind of spirit shows up in the kind of life a man lives. Bypass man and contact the God law of the Universe.

Christianity is not hate—Bombs—Destroyed Homes—and Death—But it is Peace—Life—Love and Good Will among men. This is the life law—in which man lives—moves—and has his being—and as often as you do it to each other you do it to Me—He that follows after me shall do the works that I do—Do this law—and all these things shall be added unto you. A tree is known by its fruits—A man is known by his work—Man's duty to man—is man's duty to God—You can't be right with God and wrong with your fellow man. And what Christ done is what every man wants all other men to do to him. What a man thinks—makes a man do what he does.

Again and again we say: Man's duty to God is man's duty to man. As far back as the road goes and the sun shines and the rain falls and the leaves drop off and the seasons come and go, by a fixed law which man seems to know very little about, but by this law man is rewarded for the deeds done in the body and unless we do on Earth as is done in Heaven, we just as well shoot the works and go to Hell.

Sin is created by the way man handles the material things of the Universe. Man should seek to know what is involved in the action of the God mind of the Universe.

It's not what a man thinks but what a man does with what he thinks that makes a man do what he does. Go direct to the law of the Universe.

Hate is a cancer of the soul.

Prejudice is an opiate that makes us believe, without evidence. No rule works but the Golden Rule, in the family, in the nation, and all over the world.

Regardless of what any of us think, none of us is any better than the things we let ourselves do.

We reap according to the good or evil we do every day.

The Lord doesn't lose anything when man drops a 1000 tons of bombs on a city—it's man's city—and man's work—the Lord can use the little pieces as well as the big ones.

God is known by his creation—man is known by what he does with it.

Smart men never talk about their enemies. Talking about others is just passing your own photograph around.

Why pray to God about the war—was the world talking to the Lord when it went into it?

God is the wisdom that created the universe and a law to regulate it.

The material that makes heaven is in the hands of man.

Christ was a sample of right living.

God is the first cause and the effect is life.

The God that determines the fate of man is the human mind.

Division and hate is a direct product of false teaching.

Destruction is the work of evil spirits.

Everybody seems to believe in God after they work Him over to suit themselves.

Man is only one of nature's items in the catalog of the universe.

The world sings peace, peace, then spits in the face of the son of God with crime, famine and death.

Man meets God where he doesn't meet himself.

If a thing is right it's right—if nobody believes it.

A carpenter's rule fits either a dog house or a mansion.

Popular opinion is the low water mark of human standards.

A mad man is out of balance.

Man is always ready to bet—but he never wins—and can't even pay the interest on what he's all ready lost.

All we know—is that we don't know much.

We all want full pay for half time.

God is whatever is in man that makes him move about or change from one position to another—without God nothing could live or move.

Everything that God created is good for the purpose that it was created for—man only can misplace that purpose.

Words have no value except with deeds—whatever we believe put into deeds will clearly reveal whether it's good or bad.

Universal Law

What is universal law? It is the law that regulates the movements of the universe—and all things that are in it—it holds everything together—it gives us a pain when we over eat—and a headache when we over drink—it is a law that man can't substitute—that is a built-in fixture and is a part of the universe—and operates without the consent of man—it operates on the assembly line of life that slides the soul down the ways into the waters of peace, or destruction—it is not curb service. We have to get on the inside and help ourselves. This law permits us to live—walk and talk and make a fool of ourselves—it is in us—it is outside of us—it is all around us—it is all and in all (no less—no more) this law permits us to be good or evil—you can't run away from it—it is everywhere waiting for us. This law is here, there and everywhere—at the same time—(it is universal). Words can not express the simple revelation—man can not direct its course—if man tries to change this law it will cause a wreck with death and destruction—this is the law of the universe—and holds the key to life and death—man's law creates hate, strife and division.

The human end of the animal kingdom is the only end of God's creation that creates or invents instruments for self destruction.

The further out on the sea of thought we go—the more we see that we don't know.

God is that something of the universe that man seems to have lost.

There is something called evil—this evil is created by man's false standard in acts—deeds or thoughts applied to the things of the universe—all truth comes to man through material things and is a copartner of the plan of the universe and in no way a part of the opinions of man.

What a man really believes—he can see it whether it's there or not—but he can be wrong when he knows he's right.

Everything comes to its true status in life—by its relation with other things of life.

Working with God is working in harmony with the material things of the universe.

Man gets out of life what he puts in it.

Man is standing in his own light.

The world is out of harmony with itself.

The reward for evil is death.

Evil is the only thing that's sinful and lives off the mistakes of man.

God reveals Himself through the life law of the universe.

Man is not his own—he is the product of the genius of nature.

A man who transforms raw materials into useful things is working with God.

Schools of research have traversed the heavens and the earth for the truth—men pray for it—while the revealed truth is in and all around us—it is all and in all—man has the power to unravel this mystery out of the universe. The truth is the natural law, with its incorporated and associated members. If man was on a level with the universal structure of which he is a part, he would be on a level with truth—man is known by his work—God is known by his creation which is His work—He created a law in His work—and made it plain to man how to contact that law. God is on a level with His work—man is not above his Maker—and the Maker is not above His work. Man is the only unit in the universal structure that has failed to come up with his end of the log.

The Universal God

We believe in a God that knows the mind of man and the intent of his soul. That knows why man has contacted the evils of destruction, and knows the reason why man so conducts himself. We believe in a God that knows the doctrine and commandments of men are the evil products of a misapplied law. We believe in the God that wrote the plan of salvation, that excluded hate, strife and division—and commanded all men to do good for evil—and rewards man according to his work—and will measure each person at judgment by the measure that he measures his fellow man. We believe in a God that reveals as much truth to the simple as He does to the wise—and directs man in his every day work—and we believe that man should trust this God rather than the doctrine and commandments of men. This God is the God of the brotherhood of man—and commands men to repent and turn away from sin—and live this way—by doing on earth as it is done in heaven. We believe this God can be contacted by faith and work and no other way.

If a man's faith in God is not strong enough to keep him from shooting his neighbor—any way he couldn't walk on water.

Life is a great show but it seems that a lot of us never get on the inside.

Trust in force is a trust in a lost cause—the old leopard never changes his spots.

Truth is not proved in any manner except good work—measured by the Golden Rule.

The material that makes heaven is in the hands of man—so is the material that makes hell.

Hate is a cancer of the soul.

Working with God is working with the creative mind of the Universe—And we contact this mind through doing good work.

Plants grow, buds bloom, seasons come and go. After all of man's mistakes we observe that there is no change in the law of life.

A man who thinks like Christ, and does like Christ, does the same things that Christ would do to his fellow man. Follow me, do the work that I do.

The whole plan of the Universe would have to be changed to keep man from reaping what he sows. Like begets like. Sin is created by the way man handles the material things of the Universe.

Do like heaven, so you will know how to act in heaven. Do on earth as is done in heaven. And as often as you do it to each other, you do it to me.

Good work creates good. Bad work creates evil. This is life, and the law giver of the Universe.

Talk makes a racket but what a man does makes so much fuss, we can't hear what he says.

God is the supply yard of the universe and plenty there for everybody. Why rush through life—we are just from one eternity into another—the last one may not be any better than the first.

We believe in the God that created the universe—not the God who created creeds and divisions.

Prejudice parks in an empty heart.

So man throws a bomb in his own corn crib then falls on his knees—sure people are funny—man brings death and destruction on himself.

Salvation is the act of breaking out of the imprisonment of the doctrine and commandments of men.

Good deeds can be heard farther than loud talk.

When you hear some one talking about his neighbor—take notes—and don't forget—that the cat that fights your neighbor's cat will fight yours.

If we follow man we are gone with the winds.

If man was not walking with God when he walked into trouble—why should he expect God to walk him out?

When a man goes all out—he usually comes back all in.

Applause is a racket made by hand slapping when something is said that's silly enough.—Turn on your radio.

A Christian is a person that does what Christ would do under the same circumstance.

Prayers are not graded by the fuss they make.

War is not a calamity sent on man—war is a calamity made by man and sent on himself.

The life mind and soul of the universe demands man to do the other fellow—like he wants the other fellow to do him.

With the law of life man can make for himself what he wants himself to be and can have what he wants—if he wants what was made for him to have.

What we plant in our minds we reap in our experience.

The God of the Universe talks to man through the law and life of things—God is the life in which we live and move and have our being.

The world runs over with good or evil according to man's work.

Good work creates jewels of heaven. War, bad work and hell are triplets.

The Universe has a plan of peace and that plan is ruled by law. But man runs up and down the earth hunting for something to destroy.

A life of perfection is a way to experience peace and harmony. By living in harmony with the laws of the universe.

Each creed thinks the others are wrong. But there is a lot of evidence that all creeds are wrong.

Man should dig out from under bad thinking, evil deeds and destructive forces.

Every thought, every act, every deed, is a perfect photograph of the soul. A tree is known by its fruits and a man by his work.

The divine way is not a way to death and destruction—but a way to peace on earth and good-will among men.

The beast of the field. The fishes of the sea. The fowls of the air. They probably are not conscious of what they are doing either.

One nation or group can't be 100% right while others are 100% wrong.

Men organize against enemies, other than themselves, which they have not.

Man drifts around with the wind, he forgets where he's been, and doesn't know where he's going.

What a man believes doesn't necessarily have to be right—But what he does speaks out loud.

Hate is a cancer of the soul.

The unpardonable sin is the sin that leads a man to commit the sin unto death. This sin is the sin that thinks in a man's mind, that induces him to commit the offense of producing death.

A man who takes more out of life than he puts in it, takes something that belongs to the other fellow. Man can't be right with God and wrong with his fellow man.

Heaven is built out of the kind of building material that man builds out of the kind of life he lives on earth. All sin is created by man.

We can't tell what a man is by what he says. But we can tell what a man is by what he does. And we know he does what he does because his mind has been thinking about it. Mind makes a man do what he does.

What a man does rub off on himself. And doing good is the only way to climb up to peace and goodwill.

A man is evil because his deeds are evil. Think evil and you will do evil. A man can't do it unless he lets it get on his mind. If you don't want to do it, keep it off of your mind.

If the people of the nations of the world keep following the doctrine and commandments of men, they will go places they will be sorry they went.

God is peace and life—but permits man to think himself into war, death and destruction. A mind to do, makes a man do what he does.

Jesus Christ lived a way of life—to do on earth as is done in Heaven.

God created thought—and gave it to man—and made him responsible for what he does with it.

God lives in the affairs of men—God is the law and rules the Universe—God is all and in all—in God—All things live and move.

Right and wrong is revealed in the law and life of things. And if man ever wakes up, and sees himself, he will see something that he didn't think he was.

Heaven is a place where we can exchange the kind of life we live for the kind of home we will have, built out of the kinds of deeds we do.

We repeat that God is the life, mind and soul, of everything and makes us reap what we reap, because we sow what we sow, and think what we think, and do what we do.

God gives man a mind to seek, find and prepare himself to receive, what he thinks he wants. Then makes him take what he brought on himself whether he likes it or not.

A good mind creates peace. An evil mind creates death and destruction. We have discovered that what we let our mind think about is what we do.

Do life—to have life; do death—to have death; do peace—to have peace. We have peace—life—or death according to the way we apply ourselves—to the law of good—or evil.

God is not off on some foreign planet. He is everywhere.

God is life—God is peace. He talks to us from the highest mountains—to the seashore and through every vine, every leaf, every bud, and every bloom and every other thing on the face of the earth—and from every porthole in the Universe.

Man is a part of everything, because everything is all and in all. And all and in all is God. God created a law to regulate the Universe and made it plain to man—how to contact this law.

Man seems to think that God is far away—but he is not—because He lives and has His being in His created work and is present with us in every thought and deed that we do from day to day. God is all, lives in all, and is not a part of anything.

Heaven is not a place where we can trade rags for robes, evil for good, excuses for wings, thorn bushes for shade trees. It is a place where we are sure to exchange value for value received.

Heaven was prepared for a people from a country where they don't shoot each other—where they use gold certificates for exchange not made out of paper, but good deeds done to each other. God is the law. With God everything moves. Without God nothing moves.

The ships traveling to this Heavenly port have been vaccinated against torpedoes and don't stop to pick up the opinions of man. The devil inspires opinions, made out of evil spirits, and preached by the preachers of different winds of doctrine.

There is a law that rules and regulates the Universe that is above the opinions of man, and does not inspire man to exterminate himself or his fellow man. This law permits us to be good or evil and holds the key to life and death.

We take nothing to Heaven but our record. All of us go to the place that we prepare ourselves to go. Where it will be done to us as we have done our fellow man. As often as you do it to each other—you do it to me.

Again and again we say, man's duty to God is man's duty to man. As far back as the road goes, and the sun shines, and the rain falls, and the leaves drop off, and the seasons come and go, by a fixed law which man seems to know very little about—but by this law man is rewarded for the deeds done in the body and unless we do on earth as is done in Heaven, we just as well shoot the works and go to Hell.

If man's reward is to be measured by the measure he measures his fellow man, and to be judged by the judgment by which he judges his neighbor—What can he expect of his soul when returned to the God who gave it?
